he would win his game. He did win it, and succeeded, moreover, in holding the mushroom hitters down to six measly hits Stahl was the only man who succeeded in getting anything from his delivery, and it was by chance that he batted out a home-run in the first inning. and in the eighth lined out a double.

Moores, the long, lank, lean individual, with lantern jaws and awkward movement, who some time ago shut Richmond out with but two hits, was in the box for Roanoke. He also tossed a good game, but the Bluebirds pounded out eight hits from his delivery, and this stick work being augmented by some exceed-ingly clever base running, resulted in seven runs being scored, while Roanoke only sent three Goats over the rubber. A TRYING MOMENT.

Gillen has a considerable amount of speed and seems to keep his wits about him at all times. It was rather a trying moment for him when the third man who confronted him before a new audiwho confronted him before a new audience pounded out a home-run, but it never phased him, and instead of becoming rattled, he simply pulled himself together and twirled with renewed vigor. He has a most deceptive drop hall, which he uses with good effect, and at times he shifts to a little "kinky kink" hall, which caused more than one batter yesterday to punch holes in the atmosphere.

Gillen was not so well supported as he might have been, but the Hluebirds railied around him much better than the Goats stood by Moores, and thereby hangs a tale.

Though Richmond would have won un Though Rienmond would have well dis-assisted by Roanoke's errors, several of the runs made by the Bluebirds were alone due to awful mistakes made by Padden's little "Williams." Here is the Berte made two errors yesterday, and one of them was a horrible fumble. He is a great infielder, and is National timber.

League timber.
Fultz made a couple of errors in left field, and while one amounted to but little, the other was an awful muff of a loul fly batted directly into his hands.

Welsh led in error-making yesterday, and is accredited with three. Two of them were made in quick succession in the first inning. He let the third strike pass him, with Smith at the bat, thus giving that worthy two bases, and immediately thereafter he three wild to second, and sent Smith to their the three ways over Volv's head in hird. He threw way over Volx's head in the third inning and let Groves score. Stahl did the stick-work for Roanoke, and made just half of the hits.

A rather notable result of the game is that Richmond made seven runs and three errors, and Roanoke made seven errors errors, and Roanoke made seven errors and three runs.

Lynchburg will come here to-day, and this afternoon will commence a series of three games with Richmond, Much depends on these games, so far as the pennant is concerned. Richmond has now won fifty-four games and lost thirty, and Lynchburg has won forty-nine and lost thirty-three, making the difference in the percentage of the two clubs but forty-five points in Richmond's favor. If Richmond should lose all three games to Lynchburg, there would then be but nine points difference in favor of Richmond, and if the fluebirds were to win all three, they yould take a lead of 114 points, which it yould be next to impossible for Lynchbe next to impossible for Lynch-standing the fact that in the fourth inning by making four runs they fied the score. The reason is that McPartlin pitched a magnificent game of ball, save in that one inning, when three out of the seven hits made by the visitors were secured, and these after the first two men up had been given their bases on balls. On the other hand, Moynehan, Portsmouth's new man, was tried, and in some respects found lacking. Not only were his curves ineffective, but his inexcusable error in the fifth inning, when he threw over Child's head to catch a runner, was directly responsible for two runs.

The attendance was not very large when play was called by Umpire McLaughlin, but what we lacking in numbers was made up in enthusiasm, as even the errors, and there were many made, were applauded. The features of the game were Cote's batting and all-round work and McPartlin's pitching. The score follows:

MISSISSIPPI POPS.

THEY MEET IN STATE CONVENTION TO MAKE NOMINATIONS.

Some of Them Have Hopes of Electing the Men They Nominate-They Are Numerous But Not Otherwise Noteworthy.

JACKSON, MISS., July 31.-Jackson is full of Populists, who have taken possession of Representatives' Hall, the lobby of the Capitol, and the cheap beardinghouses. The object of the meeting is to nominate a Governor and State officers, which some of them have hopes of electing. As far as numbers are concerned, the convention is first-class, but that is about all that can be said in its favor. Three fourths of the members are men who were never out of their counties before, and to whom the mule-cars, electric-lights, and vater-works of Jackson are sights worth gazing upon The moving spirit in this gathering is Captain Frank Burkitt, of Okolona, edi-

Captain Burkitt was found in the State Library, jotting down flgures and other data, and asked what the convention intended to do. He sald:
"We will put out a ticket for State officers from Governor down,"
"Do you expect to elect any of them?" asked the reporter.
"Yes, sir. If we can have such a revolution as we did in '75, we can beat you Democrats all to pieces."
That is the one hope of the Populists—that the Democracy will go to pieces over national finances.
The convention was called to order by Captain Ratciiffe, who was made tem-

WHEREASES" AND NOMINATIONS. The convention completed its labors at 6 o'clock this evening by adopting a long series of "whereases" and assertions ar-raigning the national and State Democracy for errors of omission and con mission; demanding a 29 per cent. reduction in official salaries; the abolishment of numerous clerks and deputies, and the examination of all books and accounts of numerous clerks and deputies, and the examination of all books and accounts for several years back, and reciting their confidence in the Omaha platform, and nominated the following ticket: Governor, Frank Burkitt, of Chickasaw; Lieutenant-Governor, Dr. S. W. Robinson, of Rankin; Secretary of State, R. R. Bunting, of Tallahatehee; Auditor, R. T. Love, of Sunflower; Treasurer, C. W. Bolton, of Pontoco; Attorney-General, J. J. The audience was with him, soul and body, and cheered him to the echo for every punch he gave the Democrats. He predicted that the Populists would carry the State in the coming election.

TRIMMINGS FOR SUMMER BODICES. Lace, Ribbon, Bends, and Spangles Much in Vogue.

Lace, ribbon, and bend decorations are all notes on the bodices, while Empire capes, equilettes, Vandyke arrangements and various other designs are shown for their adornment, writes Isabel A. Mallon August Ladies' Home Journal, As bead trimmings are quite expensive it in the large shops etrings of beads and spangles to be applied to ribbon or piece material, so that the economical woman may form a fashionable garniture withmay form a fashionable garniture without spending much money. Satin ribbon is more generally seen than either velvet or gross grain, and the reasons for its popularity are not only that it ties easier, but that it contrasts more effectively with the fabric proper. Stripes and plaids in silk are fancied for plain bodices, while if a plain color is used it is given an elaborate air by its trimming. Cotton blouses frequently have a double ruttle down the front for their only trimming, as it is conceded to be in best taste to develop

A very readable account of an expedi-tion for the exploration of the Kizii Ir-mak, by Lieutenant von Flottweil, is published in a supplemental number of Petermann's Mitteilungen. This is the ancient Halys, the principal river of Asia Minor, which, rising near the centre of the peninsula, flows north and empties into the Black Sea. In July, 1881, the the pennsula, how both and employed into the Black Sea. In July, 1833, the travellers, four German officers, started from Angora, the terminus of the rail-way, and for three months made as careful an examination of the basin of careful an examination of the basin of the river from this point to its mouth, near Sinope, as the jealousy of the Turk-ish officials would permit. They were strictly forbidden to take observations, to make sketches, or to excavate ruins, and a guard accompanied them to see that these orders were obeyed. There was apparently no other restriction put upon their freedom, and they were treated ordinarily with great courtesy. The country traversed is evidently one The country traversed is evidently one of great possibilities, undeveloped from want of enterprise, and, in consequence, of bad government. The railroad has not opened a market to the farmer, because there are no roads connecting with it. The cultivator cannot harvest his crops until the tax-gatherer has appraised them until the tax-gatherer has appraised them and taken his portion. The tobacco-grower must sell his crop to the government or its appointed agents at their price, without the power of retaining a single leaf for his own use. The Circassians, who emigrated here from the Caucasus and from Bulgaria, are also a check upon the growth of the country through their raiding propensities. Several excellent maps accompany the acral excellent maps accompany the ac-count. The regular July No. of this periodical contains the record of some observations on the flow of water at the sources of the Rhone, and a no-tice of a new geological map of Russia, with a reproduction of it.

(For the Dispatch.)
In the large quarto book (page 327) lately on sale, called "The Confederate Solder," edited by Benjamin La Bree, Louisville, Ky., and selling for $10 or $12, is a sad picture taken on the day of the fight the men after the fight, "They call you boys, but you have been to-day where only men dare to go." Twenty-one men were killed and badly wounded at this spot in a very short time, and twelve horses killed. It was truly a dreadful place, and the picture is perhaps the said dest among the many hundred in the book.

An Explanation from Mr. Hill. To the Editor of the Dispatch:

Your interview with Father O'Reilly in to-day's Dispatch in connection with the funeral of the late John E. Griffith calls funeral of the late John E. Griffith calls for an explanation from me, and I respectfully request the use of your valuable columns for that purpose. On last Friday morning I was sent for to come to Mr. Griffith's house to consult with the family in regard to the funeral of Brother Griffith, he being a member of our tribe in good standing. Mr. Anthony Griffith, the oldest son of Brother Griffith, told me that the family desired that the funeral should take place from the house Sunday that the family desired that the funeral should take place from the house Sunday evening at 4 o'clock. I then asked him if there would be any objection to our order performing our burial services at the grave, and he said no; that at the request of his father the Rev. J. B. Hutson had been sent for, and his father had requested Mr. Hutson to preach his funeral, On Saturday morning, when I called the house Mrs. McDonough, the oldest daughter of Brother Griffith, asked me for the order would object to the priest daughter of Brother Griffith, asked me if the order would object to the priest preaching the funeral sermon at the grave. I told her that we had no objections to any one preaching the funeral but I would like to know if there would be any objection to our order performing our ceremonies at the grave, and she assured me in the presence of another lady that there would not be any objection. On Sunday evening after arriving tion. On Sunday evening after arriving at the house I asked Mr. Pat Me-Donough, a brother-in-law of Brother Griffith, in the presence of Colonel John Murphy and Mr. James Ferriter if there Griffith, in the presence of Colonel John Murphy and Mr. James Ferriter if there would be any objection to our performing our burial service at the grave, and he assured me in the presence of those gentlemen that there would not. I could not have consulted Mrs. Griffith, as stated in the Dispatch, because she has been dead some eight or ten years. At the grave Father O'Reilly was shown the courtesy and respect that was due him as a gentleman and a minister of the Gospel, and in the performance of our burial service we certainly intended no discourtesy to him, and we simply carried out the ritual of our order.
